

Popular music – Compilation of Welte, Ampico and Duo-Art recordings

Introduction

This package combines all presently available MIDI files of popular piano roll music for the Ampico, Duo-Art and Welte reproducing pianos. Bringing this package together required renaming some of the files to achieve consistency. In the case of Hits of the Day, these are numbered from 00 to 38, to make them list in numerical and therefore date order. Reference to original catalogues is therefore best done using roll numbers rather than titles.

Many of these rolls were issued in the 1930s, when Aeolian took over Ampico, and a combined roll recording studio was established. This meant a lot of the recordings made during this time were issued on Welte Licensee, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. When compiling this package, we have taken care to ensure there are no duplicate recordings. These exist under the separate Duo-Art and Ampico packages, where duplication is not a consideration, unless you were to purchase both packages. Duplication mainly applies to popular music, as there were only a few instances of a classical recording being issued for all instruments.

This package includes numerous songs from the 1920s as well as those from the '30s. The playing style on the earlier rolls differs from the later offerings, showing the change in musical style as the 20th century moved on. There are more Ampico than Duo-Art roll recordings in this package, as these rolls are more generally available. They are also highly regarded by many collectors for their clever arrangements.

You will notice that some pianists, such as Victor Arden made a lot of roll recordings. There are also many instances of a pianist recording under a pseudonym, in particular rolls recorded by veteran artist Frank Milne. There were fewer popular-style recording artists than classical pianists, and the use of pseudonyms was done by all roll companies to suggest a greater line-up of pianists. Recordings allegedly made by Ferdie Grofe and Vincent Lopez were in fact made by in-house pianists according to the arrangements supplied by Grofe and Lopez. All of the rolls made by Lopez are labelled 'assisted.' In real life, Grofe was known as an arranger (he did the orchestral arrangement of Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue) and Lopez was a band leader who "only played a few tinkly treble notes on the piano".

The most commonly used pseudonyms are Victor Lane and Harry Shipman, names borrowed by several Ampico artists. An unusual situation occurs with Corrine de Bert, a name also shared among several artists. However, records show that Corrine de Bert was a real pianist who recorded on piano roll, albeit in the teens of the 20th century. It is believed that rolls recorded in the 1920s and later under this name are by pianists using the pseudonym. The table on the next page lists known pseudonyms applicable to this set of MIDI files. The pianists forming the Original Piano Trio (an actual group that performed live) are listed in the table. Photos of some of the pianists are also shown, proving they were indeed real.
